

The Transformative Actions Program (TAP) mobilizes financial institutions, project preparation facilities, and the private sector to help local and regional governments transform their net-zero emissions and resilient development infrastructure concepts into mature, robust and investment-ready projects qualifying for financing and implementation. Every year, projects that show high transformative impact potential get increased visibility to potential investors and are connected to project preparation facilities and financial partners.

Advocacy Instrument demonstrating the demand and diversity of subnational projects seeking finance

"The Transformative Actions Program provides the tools, resources, and support needed for local and regional governments to take action and make an impact on their communities. We need effective financing mechanisms that provide access to capital for projects that promote sustainable development, create jobs, reduce poverty, and advance global development goals. TAP Advocacy is an essential part of our efforts to make this happen."

Abby Binay - Mayor, Makati, Philippines, ICLEI Global Executive Committee Innovative Financing Portfolio Holder

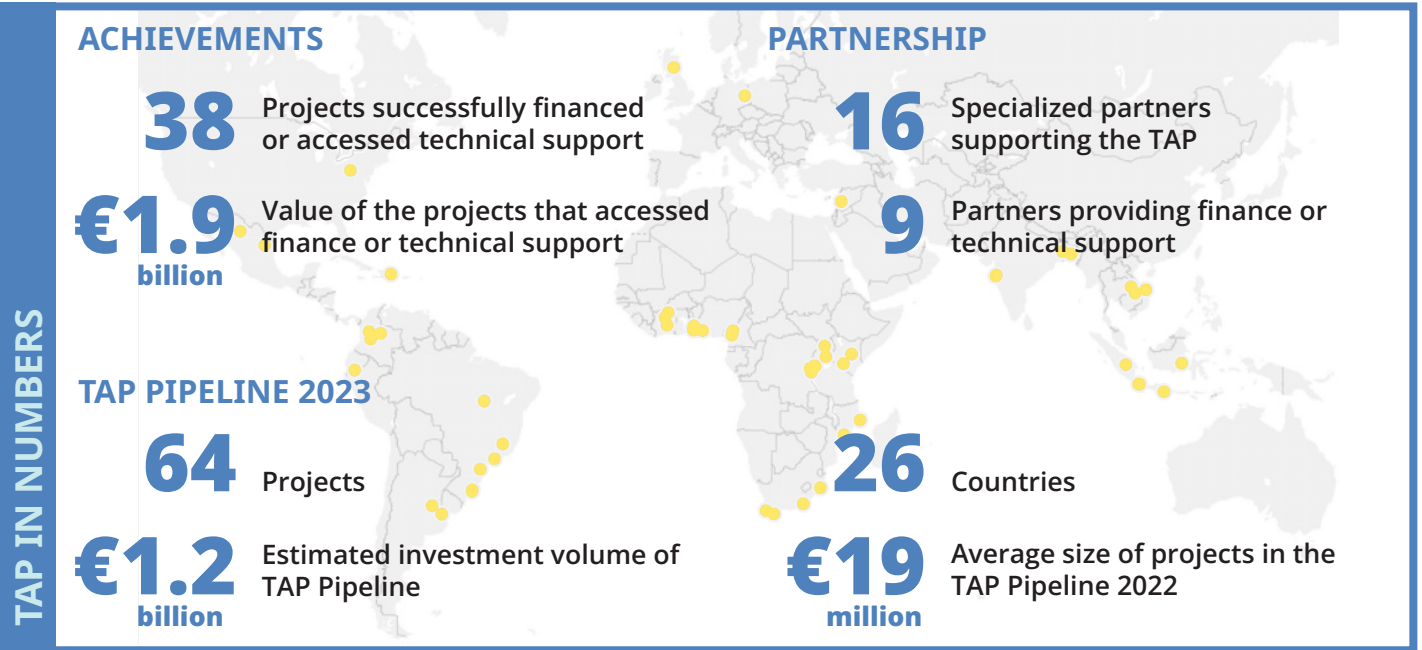

"Pipeline building and project preparation are critical to helping cities achieve tangible progress towards a low carbon future. TAP has been an effective innovator on supporting cities' access to infrastructure investments for several years, and we cooperate closely with our urban climate finance work, for example through the Cities Climate Finance Gap Fund."

Gerry Muscat - Head of the Urban Advisory Division, European Investment Bank (EIB)

"Local governments can no longer ignore the contribution of innovative finance to enhance service delivery, Makindye Ssabagabo Municipality in Uganda has immensely benefited from the capacity building, pitching, and matchmaking opportunities under ICLEI's TAP."
